Project Overview

Western Sydney University's Liverpool City Campus has been firmly embedded in the heart of Liverpool, a major CBD in western Sydney.

Officially opened in June 2018, the high-rise vertical campus spans nine floors and accommodates up to 2,500 students studying a range of social services.

The campus houses a teaching laboratory for the university's nursing students, which is one of the most technologically-immersed nurse training facilities in the country. It also provides unprecedented access to state-of-the-art facilities for technology-based businesses in western Sydney.

Construction of the building was managed by Binah Group, which was formed by Western Sydney University alumni – while the architectural design was delivered by Mosca Pserras Architects, with interiors led by Woods Bagot.
